DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1,2,3,4,5,8,9 and 33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Ritson et al. (U.S. Patent Number 3,913,581).

Ritson et al. disclose a cryogenic apparatus. Referring to Figs.6-8, the apparatus comprises valves (V3,60,14),(V4,14,21),(V5A,V5B,14,39,40), valve controller, cooling mode and backflushing mode. In response to applicant's argument that the references fail to show certain features of applicant's invention, it is noted that the features upon which applicant relies (i.e., the valves arrangement and valves operation) are not recited in the rejected claim(s). Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993). When a three-position valve is used, the first conduit when a warming mode is selected, may be either closed, open to atmosphere and shut off from the source, or remain connected to the source. If open to atmosphere, reverse flow through the restricted orifice being only for such time that the valve is maintained in its second position. It is therefore within the scope of the invention to connect the first conduit to atmosphere by the three-position valve when in its second position particularly when delay means are incorporated which ensure such connection holds for only a brief period. Such momentary reversal of gas flow is advantageous in that contaminants may be flushed out of the first conduit. In the third position, the three position valve connects at least the first conduit of the first and second conduits to the exhaust passage (claim 8). Under the principals of inherency, if a prior art device, in its normal and usual operation, would necessarily perform the method claimed, then the method claimed will be considered to be anticipated by the prior art device. When the prior art device is the same as a device described in the specification for carrying out the claimed method, it can be assumed the device will inherently perform the claimed process. Ir re King, 801 F.2d 1324, 231 USPQ 136 (Fed. Cir. 1986).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 6 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ritson et al. (U.S. Patent Number 3,913,581).

Ritson et al. discloses the invention substantially as claimed. However, Figs.6-7 do not disclose supplying refrigerant through the first conduit and the cooling device and the second conduit during the third mode. Fig.8 discloses supplying refrigerant through the first conduit and the cooling device and the second conduit during the third mode. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the apparatus of Figs.6-7 with a supplying refrigerant through the first conduit and the cooling device and the second conduit during the third mode in view of Fig.8.

Conclusion

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
